Check the following boxes to acknowledge that you:

Are an ACTIVE FHS Instructor within your organization.

Hold ACTIVE registration status with the FHS Canada Instructor Portal.

NSH and IWK have obtained permission through organizational Privacy and Risk assessments to share de-identified cases for the purpose of fetal health surveillance education within the province of Nova Scotia.

By checking this box, you agree to the following statement:

The case studies obtained from the NS FHS Case Study Repository will be used ONLY for education purposes with NSH or IWK staff in Nova Scotia.

The case studies available on the NS FHS Case Study Repository follow standardized de-identification criteria to protect patient privacy and confidentiality. No uniquely identifiable information is included.

- Cases are generic to reflect commonly occurring obstetric situations.
- Some simulated (imagined) details may have been added to enhance educational value.
- No information about who created a case study, which facility it originated from, or identifiable clinical details will be linked to case studies that are posted to the NS FHS Case Study Repository.

By checking this box, you agree to the following statement:

Case studies obtained from the NS FHS Case Study Repository will be used in accordance with my organization's Privacy & Confidentiality Policies/Pledges.

Case studies have been reviewed by the NS FHS Case Study review committee for alignment with current guidelines and practice standards. They have been approved for use in their current unaltered form.

By checking these boxes, you agree to the following statements:

The content and details included in the PowerPoint files for the case studies obtained from the NS FHS Case Study Repository will not be altered.

If case study content is altered, the NS/Atlantic FHS Case Study is not responsible for this action.

FHS Instructors are encouraged to periodically visit the NS FHS Case Study Repository to ensure they are using the most current versions of the case study given they may be updated to align with new evidence.
